All these we consider as necessary to support creditably and according to his Station one missionary. We might indeed add something more for glasses, plates, knives, forks, Towels, table cloths &c which would considerably increase this amount however with carefulness, we imagine, the above may suffice. —

The Missionaries of the Church Society who have not half nor perform one quarter of the work that is allotted for <sup>your</sup> missionary, have annually £100 worth of cloth which when it get here is equal to about £300 to them, half of their time being taken up in trade with it. We understand their salaries are going to be enlarged too. — now we know that whatever the public may say before the face of such carnal churchy missionaries, they must condemn them in their hearts. Such must be low in the estimation of all thinking men. — we do not wonder they themselves should tell us, on the turning of their Houses and Church, (so called) "after all our labours in this place we have not an honest boy or girl about us, they were all as ready to steal our things away as the rest of the natives." We bless God the Methodist Missionaries however stigmatised have generally better success. Even here there are several natives who among us have been brought into the glorious liberty of the children of God. — They have been baptized not only with water but with the Holy Ghost and with fire sent down from heaven! May the Lord add many more such to our little flock. — Mr. Davis' work enlarges on his hands. He has several country places to preach at, and there are enemies that would withstand him. We shall be happy to see him taken off as much as possible from all earthly cares, that he may attend with more composure whenever a door is opened unto him, and may have the more time for reading, meditation and prayer. There are at present in Society one Hundred and Twenty Nine, a small number
