a trading, where he lost his relish of heavenly things. Last raining season he was again brought to death's door, by the some Tox; and in his distress he again cried to the Lord, who, he said heard & delivered his Soul. But he was again raised in lode, yela fler all the Love had done for him, in a lette time, he was a pleasently, as far from righteounis as ever. There is no stability in him. As it respects any support we can get in this place, we fine it is abundantly more easy to candid now & then since we came. Sir Warren when alive, has a small make of them. Last Lady duartes there was about I to in the sewards there, which had not been expentin the Chapel, and in his hand it remains. But fix, however back things may now appear; we feel mo doubt, but that if a plain, bold & avely Treacher should come out, , he would through the blessing of heaven, change the face of them he would be useful to the Souls of many. Then provinces attending to the day school, No should have an apportunity to go without the walls are vist the town ratives, it their own habitations. Oh what a propert where before us, what an extensive field for faithful labourers. There are many hunbred of Natives round about that know a little of our language, and are entirely ignorant of God & asleep in Sin; yet are we barred from them by our labours in the city, for want of such a preacher as above descri We have upwards of Minely boys on our List for the School, Eighty of whom are general attendants. Hout twenty of Them can read on the new testament, and len of these are harners whithmetic, some of them are in division of are me what promising. We begin in the Morning with reading a chapter & traver- go out & come in at noon with sing ingayons, in general, from Buson's collection, & break up at Night with anging & Mayer. Besides teaching them the out ward Letters, we end savour, as we are able, to instill in their minds, the spiritual meaning thereof by argument, and we think we may add by example, we enforce upon them street morality whether in or out of School, at home or abroad.
